Other Worlds Than Ours.

The world of human affairs is in the mind. A man visits the park to-day. His soul is ill, and the grassy expanse, the tree-foliage, and the colors and smell of the flowers come to him and cure him. He remembers the park fondly, and is impelled afterwards to return to it. Now his mind is well, his spirit is proud. The same park is there, but the visitor has no power to see it. He may begrudge the time taken in the trip.

A farmer goes across a fine field. He discovers a Canada thistle, and a panic takes hold of him. He goes home and endeavors to affect the minds of his sons with the same alarm. They must all get their hoes and search for thistles, or the farm will be overrun and they will all be ruined. A lady, visiting this farm, goes across the same field. She discovers a long-looked for plant. Her heart is all aglow, and she takes such a view of the surroundings that she afterwards sits down and writes to a friend that she will ever regret this friend might not have been there just then to share the scene. She would even have guessed that her host, the farmer now panic-stricken over the thistle, would only have to go to that same spot to get the emotions which she enjoyed. Now let us imagine that her friend, to whom she writes, by some chance were traversing that field and there heard of the death of husband or child. All the beauties of the scene would still be there, but the sad effect which they had on the farmer would be intensified ten thousand times in the mind of the recipient of such news. How truly Northumberland speaks in the second part of King Henry Fourth:

"Yet the first bringer of unwelcome news
Hath but a losing office, and his tongue
Sounds ever after as a sullen bell,
Remembered knolling a departed friend."

Each man upon this earth lives in his own world, a cocoon, a chrysalis, which has grown less permeable each year. It is idle for us to present our world to him—when he is not in the mood to leave his invisible shell. Thus the author, the painter, the statesman—all who depend for their success on reaching the inner and finer attributes of their associates—must abide a patient time. What elicited antipathy yesterday may pass with apathy to-day; may meet with sympathy to-morrow.

The czar of Rusiia reigns an absolute monarch because his nations are pleased that he should. When he passes by, the peasant feels an exaltation of spirit, and believes that he is in the presence of something holy. Let us suppose some angel visited every home in all the Russias and spoke to boyard and peasant with the power of truth. The ten diadems at Moscow would count for no more than the same number of crowns in the property-room of a theater. No assassin would need to mole his way under the palace at St. Petersburg. The czar would be an impossible personage.

Louis the Sixteenth of France was yesterday a saint and a king. His associates were counts and dukes and marquises. To-day his people are changing their minds. To-morrow the king will be a condemned and executed felon. His associates will be wanderers on the face of the earth. Even the church, the very basis of French society, will be torn out of the hearts of the people, and God and government both be defied and set at naught. The rest of the world, unable to see the light let in by the French revolution, will look on in dismay and believe the people of a whole nation have gone mad at one and the same time.

Some years ago a German paper-carrier on West Madison street in Chicago arose at 4 o'clock a. m., washed, dressed, took a street-car, visited the various newspaper offices, got his papers, returned to his house, laid his pile of papers on a counter—the place was a laundry—went to the bed where his wife was still sleeping, shot her dead, and then lay down beside her and took his own life in the same way. Now what a gulf there was between the goings and comings of this man and the life within him. Truly, the master was away. Had you met the body of this man on the street you would simply have been speaking to the everyday attributes to whom he had left the charge of his being.

To-day a shoemaker opens shop at a new stand. A caller asks for Thompson, the former tenant. The inquirer is informed very politely that Thompson has moved to Dakota. The next caller is told less politely. The next caller is spoken to formally; the next curtly; the next half angrily. Now you yourself drop in to see Thompson. You leave that shop with the impression that you met the "champion mean man." You have seen him! There he is—keeping shop in Thompson's old place. But you have not. It did not rain as hard as you supposed. You stood under the eaves of a large roof and got all the water. That other man does not move along in the street-car. He is not a brute necessarily. His little world may be in utter darkness. His wife may have died yesterday. She may even be worse than dead to him. Last week he would have gone the whole length of the car to oblige you. You ask the name of the street from a chance passer. Think of it! He may have been neglecting his most important interests for two days. He may not even have been able to receive money from debtors on account of the fires of grief, passion, disappointment which surge within him. Is it not a wonderful thing if he shall give you a decent answer?

"We are such thing as dreams are made on"—never were truer words spoken! Let us go out among our fellows with exceeding charity. If we could see into their true existence, our paths would be much easier to follow. Yet, with the knowledge that each man lives a different life and sees a different world, we may come to a better understanding with our friends and a more enduring truce with our enemies—John McGover, in the Current.

The Feathered Singers.

"Why, you have no idea," said an old and well-known bird fancier to a Democrat and Chronicle reporter the other day, "how little care a song bird requires. It has been my experience—and a good, long experience—that the most of the deaths among canaries are caused by overcare and over-feeding. How often you will hear people—and especially ladies—say, 'I don't have any luck with birds at all. I have had two or three, and they all grew sick and died, and now I have one that won't sing at all.' And if somebody should inform them that they had killed their own birds they would call you crazy, or think you were joking them."

"What do you mean by overcare and overfeeding?" queried the reporter.

"I mean just what I say. Let a lady get a new bird. The chances are it is the first she has ever had care of. It is a novelty and a curiosity in the house, and she feels as though she must be attending to it all the time, and that if she does not it will die, or stop singing, or something. The result is she will give the bird everything she can think of or everything she has ever heard of a bird eating. You will find crackers, and cake, and bread, and candy, and sugar, and apple, and heaven only knows what, stuck through the bars of the cages for the birds to eat. In the seed-boxes you will find all kinds of seed, mixed, etc. Now, it does not seem to me that it requires an extraordinary intelligence to grasp the idea that this is all wrong. I can hush the notes of the hardiest German canary ever imported to this country by such food in a few weeks. Such sweet dainties fatten the feathered musicians. They lose their voice, they become subject to rheumatism, they get the gout in their feet. They become infested with lice, and they lose any desire for their bath. You hear an unusually brilliant songster, one who is singing loudly, sweetly, and almost incessantly, and go and look at the cage he is in. You won't find any sweetbreads and sweetmeats there."

"What is the best bird food?"

"The best bird food is just plain, ordinary, common bird-seed—only this and nothing more. It is all I give my birds, and you have heard how they sing. Two or three times a year I buy a cuttle-fish bone for them, and I keep some fine gravel or sand in the bottom of the cage for them to pick at. I put a bath dish of water, with the chill reduced, into the cage every morning. Once a week I clean the cage thoroughly, scrubbing the perches, the bottom, and the wire bars. I give them fresh water to drink and restock the seed jar once a day. This is all the care I give my birds. I keep them where it is light, where the sun shines occasionally, and where there is fresh air. Birds should not be hung too high in the room either, for here they get the heated air, which is not good for them. Give a bird such treatment as this—plain, clean bird seed, fresh water, and fresh air, and if he dies or loses his song it will be from natural causes." —Rochester Democrat and Chronicle.

Sunlight in Stables.

We tried an experiment some years since to test the absence of sunlight on a calf. We had two deep red calves of the same age (sixty days), one weighing 180 pounds and the other 182 pounds. The latter we placed in a dark room, with a trough that could be filled by a spout through a partition. The other was confined in the same amount of space, but in full light, and both were fed just exactly alike for the next three months. The object was to test the effect of light upon such a growing animal. At the end of the three months the one in the light weighed 430 pounds and the one in the dark weighed 360 pounds and its color had faded to a very pale, dirty red. Its eyes were so much affected that when admitted to the light it kept them closed most of the time for the first week or two. The two calves were kept on together, but the one from the dark room never fully recovered from this three months of darkness. It never recovered its deep red color, though the color improved. Any one who noted these two calves during this experiment would never doubt the impolicy of dark stables.—Live Stock Journal.

What Shall we do With our Young Women.

Concerning this question, which is anxiously asked by thoughtful parents both in Europe and America, the Whitehall Review pertinently remarks: The question resounds through the length and breadth of the society of to-day, from the highest heights down to the deepest depths, in tones of equal anxiety and almost of despair. It is sighed in the drawing-room amid gilding and sweet essences; it is grumbled in the farm among the butter and the cheeses; it is sobbed in the back alley over the needle that creeps wearily to and fro through the rags that would be neat if they could; it throbs in the brain of the thinker; it lies heavily on the heart of the social reformer; it casts a shadow on many a sunny home.

Seeing, then, that this is really and actually the case, and that this question is, in truth, one of the problems of our day—a problem with which we have all more or less to do—let us turn and look it calmly and bravely in the face. We will not groan over it, we will not sneer over it, though these are the two commonest ways of meeting it; but we will try to consider it in a rational, straightforward, sensible manner. Ghosts are said to speak when they are spoken to, and to explain their wants; and perhaps this problem, if we address ourselves earnestly to it, will do the same for itself.

In the first place, let us cast away into the lumber-room, where we banish day by day more and more of the absurd, harmful, old world fallacies, the notion that the only thing we can do with our young women is to marry them. If a girl becomes in a simple, natural way—the way of the heart—a wife and mother, well and good; she has found her vocation; and if she does her highest and best in it, she has found a very noble one indeed. Let us never, however, bring her up to believe that such is to be her certain calling in life. If once such an idea gets firmly fixed in her head, a young woman will very speedily answer the question as to what is to be done with her by resolutely and systematically doing nothing at all besides alternately flirting and moping. Another thing which will greatly help toward the solution of this question is the bringing up our girls in independent habits and in the practice of taking care of themselves. A young woman who can take care of herself, both physically and mentally, will be able to do many things with ease and safety which can not be done by a girl who has been badly and foolishly trained in this particular.

In these days of higher and broader education for women there are many walks in life open to girls which were impossible for their grandmothers, simply from the cause that they were never sufficiently taught to follow them. If a young woman has any real talent in literature or painting or music, she has now every advantage to enable her to develop it. She has also, in our time, a fair chance of winning for herself fame and money in any of these departments of art. The literary woman is no more fought shy of in respectable society as an eccentric, mermaid sort of creature, who is neither flesh nor fowl; the female painter is no longer treated with a pitying, supercilious condescension by artists of the other sex; the public singer can now, if she so wills it, keep as high and pure a name as the loftiest lady in the land with the longest handle to her name. If, then, a young woman has a real artistic talent, the question as to what is to be done with her will be answered in a moment. She has but to be shown the way to cultivte her gift, and she will quickly find out what she is to do without any one needing to show her. Let it be observed, however, that we use that word "real" very emphatically, for there is not the smallest use in her trying to do what she cannot do thoroughly and well. If a young woman thinks that her feeble, or badly finished off, or very ordinary artistic work will be treated with respect and consideration simply on account of her age and sex, she will find herself sadly mistaken and disappointed in these days of crush and competition.

When, however, we try to answer the question.

"What shall we do with our young women?" We must look at it from a point of view which concerns the mass of the sex chiefly, and not those comparatively few among them who are endowed with specia lartistic gifts. It is far too often presupposed that girls must be artistically gifted, and thus their education leads in quite a wrong direction for solving the problem. We do not expect all our young men to be able to write books, paint pictures, or play on musical instruments. Why, then, should we expect this of our young women? The question which we want to meet successfully, both in female education and in women's daily life, is, what shall we do with those young women who merely possess an ordinary share of intellectual power and are endowed with no particular talent?

Now, one thing which might do with our young women, with vast usefulness to the community in general, would be to make them more universally the exclusive guides and teachers of boys up to a certain age. It would be well for every English lad in every rank of society if to the age of ten or twelve, at least, he could be placed under the entire rule and influence of a sensible, broad-minded, warm-hearted woman.

A boy will never follow so easily and readily any leading save that of a woman; she can guide him with a silken thread where a man cannot drag him with a rope. Moreover, how many of the darker stains of our modern social life would vanish away from among us if such an early training, under female influence, wove, as it were, into the texture of our boys' characters a high, strong, rechivalrous for womanhood.-When we take this things into consideration, we feel how truly and really for the highest interests of the whole moral life of the nation it would be if the question, what shall we do with our young women? were partly, at least, answered by the establishment throughout the whole land of schools for boys of all ranks exclusively kept by well-educated women. To make the scheme more possible colleges might be opened for the special training of girls to fill these important situations.

The practice of employing women as clerks is opening a field of suitable work for women which helps to answer in a very satisfactory way the question. What shall we do with our young women? The administrative faculty, often possessed by women in a very high degree, makes them peculiarly fitted for such work, and surely not the most precise prude that ever laid down a code of female propriety can find anything objectionable in a woman, be she ever so young and attractive, sitting at a desk and handling a pen. Of course, those business houses which employ clerks of both sexes should take every possible care to provide for their comfort and respectability. It is greatly to be wished that all our Government offices of business, whether great or small, would employ female clerks more generally than they even now do, for the neatness and correctness, which are two good qualities natural to women, come advantageously forward in such a position and such a calling.

What shall we do with our young women? as the question is asked in some English home where several girls are dawdling listlessly over crewel-work. We answer, send them into some of our large hospitals to learn what they can do there. It will only be in very rare and abnormal cases that women will make any way in the world as doctors. They have not the strength of nerve for surgeons, or the massiveness of brain for physicians, but a grand sphere of work lies waiting for them as sick-nurses. What an unspeakable boon it would be for every country village to have residing in it an educated woman who had received a thorough training as a nurse! Her services ought, of course, to be paid, like those of the parish doctor, with a regular yearly salary, so that is the poorest family might be able if they needed it, to claim her care and attention. If such a band of trained nurses were to go forth into our retired rural districts, how many a precious life would be saved, how many a young mother would live to smile on her child, how many a widow and orphan would be spared the starvation of parish pay, and how would the overworked parish doctor bless such an intelligent, ready, sympathetic auxiliary! If women were to study chemistry thoroughly, it would certainly be quite possible for them to make good chemists. This is a branch of medicine in which they might excel.

To go to another department of work, which nevertheless has some connection with disease and its cure, they would make the best teachers in all asylums for the blind and the deaf and dumb, on account of their patience and fertility of resource.

There are, then, many things which we might do with our young women that we do not do, but which we may set about doing at once. Our young women, however, must remember that if such sustained, earnest work in different departments, as that of which we have been speaking, is intrusted to them, they must give up all desultory, dawdling ways, all that uneven irregularity, all that dilletanteism, which, in general, hinder women from doing any good work in the world, and must weave into their habits and characters active reality, promptness, punctuality and steadfast intensity.

PALMERSTON, Oct. 29.—A man named George Brewster, returning from Missouri to visit friends at Rothsay, Ont., was killed here to-night by the train passing over him. He had money and notes on him amounting to about $400.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 29—A boy of thirteen, son of Wm. McCluskey, fell through a defective pier at the ferry slip this morning and was drowned.

YARMOUTH, Oct. 29.—There is considerable excitement here and in other towns of the county over a murder just unearthed. The guilty man and his victim both have been respected citizens. Benjamin Trefry, of East River, disappeared last Saturday and no clue could be obtained as to his whereabouts. There was suspicion of foul play, as it was known that he had some trouble with one Absalom Hulburt, a neighbor, and hundreds of people turned out to search the woods. The search continued all Monday and most of yesterday without any results being obtained. Suspicion seemed to gather around Hurlburt and at last he appears to have been unmanned by ominous looks in his direction, finally making the confession that he killed the man and threw his body in the lake. Hurlburt is under arrest and parties have gone to drag the lake.

HALIFAX, Oct. 29.—A telegram from Yarmouth says this morning Hurlburt said his statement was made on the strength of a dream. The prisoner was lodged in gaol. He has made no further statement than the foregoing. Some time ago Hulburt served two years in penitentiary for cattle stealing. Trefry was a widower, about 25 years of age, and leaves one child.

OTTAWA, Oct. 29.—Mr. Salter, Inspector for the London Insurance Company; Mr. McLean, of Toronto, Secretary of the Underwriters' Association; and Mr. Alfred Perry, of Montreal, arrived here to-day to inspect the appliances for surpressing fires in this city and Hull, with a view for fixing insurance rates here. The inspection is to be made more particularly in reference to the means of putting out fires in the Chaudiere lumber-piling grounds, as insurance men regard these immense piles of dry lumber as a great menace to the city.

MONTREAL, Oct. 29.—The libel suit of the Canada Shipping company v. The Toronto Mail, resulted in a verdict awarding the plaintiffs $100 damages.

LONDON, Oct. 29.—In regard to the late Nilestown tragedy, the Grand Jury have returned a true bill for manslaughter against Henry Lancett and Edward Nolty.

George Digman was placed upon trial charged with man-slaughter. He was clerk in Meek's drug store in Mt. Brydges, and it was alleged he made a mistake in giving medicine to Thos. A. Baxter. Mr. Baxter went to the drug store on 22nd of August of 1883 and asked for five cents worth of santonine. He was given a small package by the prisoner, and it was taken home by Mr. Baxter and given to his wife. Two days afterwards Mrs. Baxter gave each of her two young children a small quantity of the medicine and in a very short time both expired in great agony. The remainder of the medicine was shown to a doctor, who pronounced it to be strychnine.

WEST INDIAN ANNEXATION.

The question of the annexation of Jamaica is now agitating the Eastern press. The supposition that the object of Sir John Macdonald's visit to England is to negotiate this matter has set the various papers to arguing the pros and cons before it is at all certain that annexation is being considered at all. However, the Eastern journals must have some question to quarrel about and, perhaps, it is well that the subject should be thoroughly discussed in view of its possibility. The opposition press is of course vigorously opposed to the scheme, and many are the objections raised against taking into the confederation this alien island. But plausible as many of these objections are they are, to our mind, greatly outweighed by the advantages to be gained by the acquisition of so fertile a territory. The first great consideration in favor of the project is the value to the Dominion of the varied and valuable products of Jamaica and the other British West Indies; for should Jamaica enter the confederation, in all probability the other British islands would soon follow suit. Canada labors under a great disadvantage, compared with the United States, in having but one climate throughout the whole extent of its territory. Some sections are favored with a more balmy air than others, allowing the cultivation of luscious fruits and vegetables, while large tracts are unsuited to anything but grain. But the United States comprise every variety of climate from that of the extreme northern states, which is similar to Canada, to the tropical and semi-tropical climate of Florida and other southern states, whose products, comprising sugar, cotton, tobacco, rice and tropical fruits, constitute a large proportion of the wealth of the country. Should Jamaica enter the confederation all these products would be ours also, and articles on which we now pay a heavy duty would enter our ports free. On the other hand, a large free market would be provided for Canadian manufactured goods as well as for butter, cheese and other farm produce. Manufacturers will be the strongest supporters of the measure for the opportunity to secure such a market is not to be lost. The British West Indies have a population of 1,600,000, whose principal clothing is cotton, and this Canadian manufacturers would be able to supply by importing the raw material from the tropical province. Even suppose that in time Jamaicans should resolve to manufacture for themselves, machinery would then be imported from Canada. But the tropical islands will always be, to a great extent, agricultural countries, and it is with such that Canada, seeking to improve her manufactures, should covet an alliance. The greatest objection that has been made to the entrance of Jamaica is the fact that it would bring so many thousands of negroes into the franchise, and this is certainly an objectionable feature; but, as one journal says, they are not as bad as the Chinese of British Columbia or the hordes of pagan Indians in the northwest, for they are at least Christians. On the whole, we would favor annexation on the ground that it would stimulate Canadian interests and double the number of Canada's resources.

THE LATE MR. FAWCETT, M. P.

The death of Professor Fawcett, as he was popularly called, will leave a great blank in political life, and more especially in the ranks of the liberal party in England. Born at Salisbury where his father, who is now 92 years of age, resides, he was educated at the University of Cambridge, and shortly after finishing his brilliant career as a student he unfortunately met with a horrible accident. When out shooting the gun carried by his father burst and blinded permanently both of Mr. Fawcett's eyes. Mr. Fawcett, with great pluck resolved that though blind he would follow almost every pursuit that he had been accustomed to. Accompanied now by his wife, a member of the talented family of Garretts, and now by his secretary, he went out salmon fishing, rode on horseback, skated with great expertness, and was a famous bycicist. Before long he became professor of political economy in the University of Cambridge, and also a member of parliament for the borough of Brighton. At this time he went down to Cambridge, a distance from London of some 40 miles, delivered a lecture on political economy, and the same afternoon returned to London and was most active in the house of commons as radical member for Brighton. He was a regular and frequent speaker, more especially on educational, university and East Indian affairs. It was wonderful to find this blind gentleman with a magnificent presence, six feet full in height, but perfectly blind, getting up after the budget speech of the Indian secretary and pouring forth three or four columns of criticism and of statistics immediately after the budget had been introduced, and with nothing but his memory to guide him. Mr. Fawcett was out of parliament for some six months, but was returned afterwards for Hackney, one of the most populous middle class boroughs in London, and on the formation of the present Gladstone government he was made postmaster-general with a salary of $10,000 a year. His record as an administrator in the postoffice was a record of reform and a period of perfect success. It was generally understood that the professor would enter Mr. Gladstone's cabinet on the next vacancy; but unhappily death, which with equal foot enters the dwelling of the peasant and of the minister, cut him off in the prime of life. Mr. Fawcett was much indebted to his wife for literary assistance, for she shared with him the authorship of books, even on political economy. It may be of local interest to know that Mrs. Fawcett is a cousin of H. Croft, Esq., J. P., of Croft & Angus, Chemainus.

THE ELECTION.

New York is now conceded to have gone for Cleveland. If this should prove correct he will be the next president, although, perhaps, not without a struggle, as Blaine declares that the pivotal state has been carried by fraud and demands an investigation. It is just possible that if fraud should be proven the republicans will endeavor to hold office in spite of the electoral college; or that both sets of delegates will go to the college from New York. Such a proceeding would be revolutionary; but the party who have held office for 25 years will not relinquish power without a violent wrench. Wise counsels may prevail; but after the manner in which Tilden was counted out, the world may be prepared for anything.

EXCLUSIVE DISPATCHES TO THE COLONIST.

LAST NIGHT'S DISPATCHES.

LATEST ELECTION RETURNS

Belief that Cleveland is President.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—This morning a salute of 100 guns was fired in the City Hall park by order of the leaders of the county Democracy, in honor of Grover Cleveland's election to the presidency. Booming of guns drew large crowds from the bulletin boards at the newspaper offices to the park. During the firing a portion of a wad from a gun struck a little newsboy named Jacob Simon in the face, knocking out one of his eyes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7, 11:45 a. m.—Ten districts, not heretofore reported at all, have just been received at the Associated Press office. Some come from the mountain regions by mail. These ten districts foot up as follows: Blaine, 664, Cleveland, 217.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Jay Gould this morning sent the following to Governor Cleveland: "I heartily congratulate you on your election. All concede that your administration as governor has been wise and conservative, and in the larger field as president I feel that you will do still better, and that the vast business interest of the country will be entirely safe in your hands."

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The returns received from the county clerks are what so suddenly changed to Cleveland what seemed a plurality for Blaine in this state. The county clerks' returns thus far give Cleveland 1,000 plurality. The Tribune estimates that Blaine has a plurality in the state of 1,114. The Times' returns from all but two counties show Cleveland has 1,276 plurality. The Sun has received figures from fifty-five of sixty counties, which make Cleveland's plurality 1,205. The Post, republican, claims the state for Blaine by from 5,000 to 7,000.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—4 p. m.—A brief summary of the situation is as follows: If the Associated Press count is correct Blaine has carried New York state by about 100 plurality. On the other hand if the returns as received from the clerks of the various counties in the state are correct, Cleveland has a plurality in the state of about 650. The Associated Press have invited members from both the democratic and republican national committees, and from the leading newspapers to meet them to-night and recount the returns.

ALBANY, Nov. 7.—General Carr, secretary of state, and a republican, says: "There is no chance of stealing this state; not as long as I have charge of the affairs. I don't propose that any body shall steal the state. If Mr. Cleveland has a plurality large or small he will get it. The same is true of the other candidate. I don't propose to play any southern game, no matter whether its a friend or foe with me. He has to have his justice." The Argus says: "No fraudulent methods to put James G. Blaine in the White House will be allowed. The men who attempt it will be killed and the legal consequences of killing them will be taken care of afterwards."

ALBANY, Nov. 7.—Congratulatory dispatches have poured in upon the Governor all the morning. They come from every state in the union and from many parts of Europe.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The democratic national committee has issued an address which states to the people of the United States that Cleveland and Hendricks are elected, with 219 electoral votes. The address contains the names of states which have given a democratic majority, including New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and West Virginia. The address concludes thus: "No fraud or contrivance can defeat the will of the people of the United States thus publicly and deliberately declared."

INDIANAPOLIS, Nov. 7, 8:30 a. m.—Sixty-eight counties show that the state has probably given Cleveland 3000 plurality.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—The democrats fired one hundred guns this afternoon over the election and will parade to-night and to-morrow.

SECOND DISPATCH.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The Temps announces meetings will be held at the foreign office next week to harmonize the views of France and those of the African association upon territorial limits in the Congo country.

The Tonquin committee of deputies has voted a credit for the reinforcement of the French forces. The minister of war and marine intimated to the committee if the conflict continued in Tonquin they would be obliged to ask for a further credit in December of eight millions.

The Suez Canal committee go to Egypt to examine and report on the feasibility of widening the present canal or whether necessity exists for building a second canal. De Lesseps and his son will accompany the committee.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—Reports of the cholera reappearing have a depressing effect upon the bourse and tourists are again leaving the country.

The prefect of police at to-day's sitting of the Seine council expressed the opinion that cholera would again speedily disappear as only isolated cases are reported.

Reports of cholera from midnight Thusday to 8 this morning show 27 cases and 7 deaths.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The senate adopted three articles of the senatorial reform bill providing for the election of 225 senators by departments and colonies, and 75 by the senate; term of service is fixed at nine years instead of life. Pretenders to the throne declared ineligible to the senate.

EASTERN STATES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A crowd of people were cheering last night in Brooklyn for Cleveland and Hendricks. Patrick Bray, inspector of sewers, and Patrick Cunningham, a car driver, cheered for Blaine and Logan. They were set upon by the crowd and both stabbed. Bray's wounds are fatal. No arrests.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 7.—Louisville has been taking things quietly, and anxiously awaiting definite election returns; but to-night the city has gone mad over the democratic success. The Courier-Journal took the iniative in decorating its buildings, and the city is now handsomely decorated with flags, bunting, etc. The old men and boys vie with each other in celebrating, and the streets are filled with enthusiastic citizens who rejoice and shout for democracy and reform.

LEWISTOWN, Me., Nov. 7.—The Journal's summary for 370 towns give the following: Blaine, 66,079; Cleveland, 46,547. Blaine's plurality, 19,592.

MADISON, Nov. 7.—The steamboat Fannie Frieze was burned to the water's edge at the wharf this evening. The fire caught from a torch igniting hay, 400 bales of which composed her cargo. The flames went through the roof in less than half a minute, obliging the passengers and crew to jump into the river and escape. The books and baggage of the crew, etc., are a total loss.

CANADA.

MONTREAL, Nov. 7.—Rev. Father Chiniquy preached last night in Canning street Presbyterian Church, and was again interrupted by a band of young men apparently students. The excesses of the night before, however, were not repeated. The disturbance was confined to shouts and yells, interspersed with lively skirmishing with the police. The students after being expelled from the church, marched through the streets singing and giving hideous yells while passing any protestant church. The leaders of the crowd were severely clubbed by the police and removed to the hospital. One arrest.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, Nov. 7.—Anarchist Barfuss was sentenced to six years hard labor on a charge of high treason. The principal count in the charge was posting placards of an incendiary nature.

TURKEY.

CONSTANTINOPAL, Nov. 7.—Monsiegnor Azarian, Armenian patriarch, who has been ill for several months, died to-day.

ST. ANNE DESMONTE, Que., Nov. 7.—The storm of the 5th, which visited here took much the shape of a cyclone. Fifteen houses were destroyed and a considerable quantity of wood which fishermen had in store was swept away. Fishing boats were totally demolished, having drifted on the rocks. Several poor families who stored provisions in cellers have lost them. Roadways were destroyed by the floods, and bridges smashed up. At Notre Portage, the storm was felt very severely. Three houses were swept away and a small wharf knocked over and three miles of fencing carried off.

COLORADO.

DENVER, Nov. 7.—From authorized reports received from Silver Flume to-night, it is learned the loss by yesterday's fire will not exceed $75,000; insurance about $30,000. Twenty business houses were destroyed.

MEXICO.

MEXICO, via Galveston, Nov. 7.—The treaty for reciprocal passage of American and Mexican troops across the boundary line has been extended to October 31st, 1885.

An Ohio Clergyman Shoots into a Crowd of Students.

Avalanches and Floods do Great Damage in Spain.

The Franchise Bill Passes its Second Reading.

General Rejoicing in the States by the Democrats.

Rumored Arrests of Officials for Tampering with Returns.

EASTERN STATES.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 7.—Oberlin's special to the Leader reports that last night, after receiving the report that Blaine was elected, the college students and citizens built a bonfire and discharged guns, fired anvils and had a jubilee, winding up by serenading prominent prohibitionists, including one professor, with tin pans, horns and other unmusical implements. In their rounds they paid a visit to the residence of Rev. Mr. Mills, senior in the college, and the minister who had been a conspicuous advocate of the cause of the prohibition party. The moment the charivari began at his house he fired four shots from a revolver into the crowd, one of which slightly wounded a student named Mitchell, piercing the edge of his ear and grazing the side of his head. Mills was arrested and put under $100 bail for trial to-morrow. The feeling against him is reported very violent.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The executive committee of the various Cleveland and Hendricks clubs to-night resolved to hold a mass meeting of merchants and citizens to-morrow evening in the academy of music. The committee issued an address to business men in the city in which they say: "The election of Cleveland and Hendricks to the presidency and vice-presidency of the United States is an assured fact. All can rejoice that the election is over, and that our active energies may be once more given to our regular business affairs." Following are among the gentlemen who have been invited to address the meeting Saturday night: Rev. Henry Ward Beecher, Carl Schurz, Saml. J. Randall, George William Curtis, Benjamin H. Bristow and others.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—In Brooklyn late to-night the police stopped political parades, fearing they might lead to trouble in this city. Great crowds gathered to-night at headquarters of the republican and democratic committees but no returns were given out. There was an entire absence of the feverish feeling of last night. In all parts of the city the democrats are seemingly content with the proclamation and controversy ended and Cleveland elected.

CHICAGO, Nov. 7.—A number of republicans went in a body to the house of Postmaster Palmer and called out Gen. Logan. He bowed his thanks, but declined to make any remarks.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—In the commons to-night the franchise bill was read a second time by a vote of 372 to 132.

FRANCE.

PARIS, Nov. 7.—The reappearance of cholera causes great alarm throughout Europe.

LONDON, Nov. 7.—The announcement of the election of Gov. Cleveland to the presidency is generally favorably received and welcomed here. At the American exchange the daily register was opened for an informal registration of the political opinions of visitors. The result to-day is as follows: Cleveland 96, Blaine 80.

SOUTHERN STATES.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 7.—The Democratic state central committee issued an address of congratulation to the people on the great victory gained by the independent republicans who bravely put themselves into the thickest of the fight.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Rumors are current late to-night that Jno. J. Davenport and Jno. J. O'Brien have been arrested for alleged tampering with election returns. Mr. O'Brien was seen later and denied that he had been indicted by the grand jury, and expected to be in custody only a day or two. Davenport is U. S. commissioner, and O'Brien is chairman of the republican county committee and of the bureau of elections.

The Weekly Colonist.

This morning the weekly edition of THE COLONIST is issued, and contains all the important news, domestic and foreign. The reports from the gold mines, the Metlakahtla difficulty, the ball to the Admiral and the latest telegrams in reference to the great election across the border and other events are chronicled, with full epitome of local happenings, making it a most desirable issue to send abroad.

STILL IN DOUBT!

THE POLICE TAKE PRECAUTIONS

DEMOCRATS STILL CONFIDENT.

Blaine Charges Fraud and Demands Investigation.

(Exclusive to The Colonist.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The acting superintendent of police to-day sent a message to all police captains to prevent all parades not having proper permits from the police and to give an escort to those that had permits.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 7.—A proclamation was issued to-day by the chief of police forbidding the posting of election bulletins and the blowing of tin horns on the street. This has had the effect of reducing the crowd materially and the best order prevails.

SAVANNAH, Nov. 7.—One hundred guns were fired to-day in honor of Cleveland's election. An immense mass meeting was held in front of the Cotton exchange and arrangements made for a grand public demonstration.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—A clerical error in the associated press footings gives Cleveland 500 more votes.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—By order of the acting superintendent of police issued to-day captains are required to hold their men in readiness for any outbreak that might occur. A large force of police officers is massed in the station house nearest to newspaper officers.

The supreme court to-day granted an order requiring the chief of the bureau of elections to show cause why he should not permit a committee of lawyers appointed at last night's meeting to inspect the election returns.

The New York Post says the adherents of Grover Cleveland may rest confident that this state has given him a plurality and that he has a large majority in the electorial college.

The chairman of the democratic national committee has sent the following dispatch to the national committeemen for each state:—"NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—It is now conceded on all sides that Cleveland and Hendricks are elected. The plurality in the state of New York is not less than 1,300.

The republican state committee state that Blaine has carried the state and is elected.

Several errors have been discovered. Indications are growing stronger that the vote will be nearer even than any estimates have yet conceded. Many counties are yet to be revised, however, and the work will be slow and tedious.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—Capt. Berghold, commanding the police in the precincts in which the Western Union building is states that everything is peaceful.

NEW YORK, Nov. 7.—The Mail and Express prints the following:— "AUGUSTA, Me., Nov. 7.—To the chairman of the national committee:—I am advised that there have been frauds committed in New York state. I believe that the honest vote of the state gives a republican plurality and I ask the committee to see that we have a fair and honest count.

(Signed) J. G. BLAINE."

Personal.

Mr. Chas. Hughes and Capt. John McLellan of New Westminster are in the city.

Mr. Pickering, of Pickering & Co., Seattle, is in town.

Mr. Chas. Hayward went to the Royal City yesterday in connection with the contract he has in hand for the alterations in the provincial penitentiary.

Mr. Henry Brackman, of Brackman & Ker, North Saanich, is at the Oriental.

Hon. Mr. Trutch has gone to the mainland to inspect the railway work.

Deputy-Attorney-General Irving is at New Westminster conducting the murder case for the prosecution.

Obituary.

Graham James Clark, of the firm of Smith & Clark, contractors, died at his residence, James Bay, yesterday afternoon at the age of 46 years. The deceased was a native of Denny, Sterlingshire, Scotland, and was in Australia and New Zealand before coming to Victoria in the golden days of Cariboo. He was a pioneer in that district, and in the Big Bend and Omineca country. Returning to Victoria he has been engaged for a number of years as contractor and builder. He was a member of the Masonic and Oddfellow societies, and a respected and useful citizen. He leaves a wife to mourn his death in the prime of life.

Naval.

Rear Admiral Baird sailed in the Mutine yesterday for Burrard Inlet and will remain absent for a few days. H. M. S. Swiftsure will go to sea on the 17th, calling at San Francisco on her way south. At Chile she will meet her relief, the Triumph, to which vessel Admiral Baird will transfer his flag and the Swiftsure will then proceed to England.

The Penitentiary Murder.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Nov. 7, 1884.

The case of Rogers, for the murder of Wm. Sterry, came up before the magistrate to-day, and the prisoner was committed for trial.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL.—Colleen Bawn was presented before a large audience last evening. Mr. C. Podger, for whose benefit the piece was given, sustained the leading role of Miles-na Copaleen in a very creditable manner. Mr. Podger is a promising young actor and has only been on the stage a short time, his first appearance having been made in this city. The other parts were well taken. Miss Roblin, Mr. Melvin, Miss Smith and Mr. J. A. Snow doing excellently. We understand that "Rosedale" will be given this evening.

SKIL OR BLACK COD.—The editorial palate has had the felicity of being tickled by the skil or black cod caught by Mr. Combes, C. E., in Queen Charlotte Island waters. The skil are all that has been claimed for them—the finest that the sea produces. There ought to be an active demand for them. The average of 110 skil caught by Mr. Combes was 6 pounds.

"THE PRINCESSE."—An 8-button tan colored Kid Glove, with black, seef or mixed silk points, price $1.25 per pair. We invite a trial of this remarkable glove; also, of an especially cheap black French Glove, 4 fasteners, at $1 per pair.

WM. WILSON & CO.,

THE football match between the Fleet and Victoria, which was to have taken place this afternoon, has been postponed owing to several players of the Victoria team not being able to attend.

THE SWIFTSURE BAND will not perform at Government Buildings this afternoon.

The Dockyard Stays Where it Is

The determination of the Canadian government to complete the drydock at Esquimalt has left the Imperial government no alternative but to strengthen and enlarge their dockyard there with the view of remaining permanently. Important works will be commenced at Esquimalt next spring. We may add that it was never seriously contemplated by the Imperial government to remove the dockyard from Esquimalt; but Major-General Laurie, who knows nothing about naval warfare, and Mr. Sandford Fleming, who is a scientist and surveyor, but never sailed a skiff, took it upon themselves to suggest a change which which would have left the coal supplies of the province, on which Her Majesty's ships must depend in case of war, entirely unprotected. The decision of the Admiralty is a direct and merited "snub" to the distinguished landlubbers who presumed to teach naval officers.

What Some People Say.

That a Meadville girl who had fallen in love with a journalist, refers to him as her papier maché.

That our slightly esteemed morning contemporary puts words in our mouth anent the Metlakahtla difficulty. Our s. e. c. should confine himself to the distortion of telegrams that are taken without credit from his more enterprising neighbors. That is his normal avocation. When he travels beyond the limited sphere of the pastepot and scissors he develops into a libeller or a jackass.

That the postmaster-general has issued instructions to all postoffices not to receive any defaced coins in future. A more plain and practical plan would be to order that all defaced coins received in the postoffice and custom-houses should be returned into the mint and be recast.

That the mayor of Litchfield, England, recently sent broadcast a request for opinions as to the advisability of celebrating the centenary of Dr. Johnson's death. Only thirty-one replies were received—twenty-one in favor, two against and eight indifferent. It is quite possible to carry the celebration business to the verge of the grotesque.

That Sitting Bull and a number of his band have been of late exhibiting themselves in the east. Now the United States government has ordered them back to their reservation. It is reported that Bull has made a fortune ranging from $40,000 to $60,000 by his exhibitions and the sale of his photographs. Should this prove true, the squateous taurine may feel a little more independent of the government than he did.

THE CIVIC ELEPHANT.

He is Turned out to Grass at Beacon Hill.

Jumbo, the pet elephant of the street committee, has been turned out of his comfortable quarters at the City Hall and is now reposing on the green turf at Beacon Hill, where he excites the curiosity of the stranger and gives food for reflection to the citizen who may chance to visit the park. Although he has done good service to the city, it has been at a great expense, for the cost of the corps of men who have been engaged through the summer to feed him with his favorite food, limestone rock, amounted to something enormous; while the dentists who have repaired his shattered teeth every once in a while have swelled the total until now the corporation have become poor and their pursestrings tightened, though with very little to close on. As a consequence Jumbo has been sent hither and thither and now lies at the park grounds resting his massive form, deserted by his keepers and friends. One cannot help standing somewhat in awe as he gazes on the reclining leviathan, and heave a sigh for the hopes that were cherished and never realized; for the delight that our schoolboys at civic legislation once took in sporting with him. And now, abandoned to the mercy of wind and weather, without food, he is gradually becoming a monster of complaints. The biting wind and rain have played with his exposed joints until he cannot move without the groans and squeals of a chronic rheumatic. His former bright appearance has been changed to a yellowish coppery hue, while the jaws in which the hard limestone seemed as peanuts can scarcely move. How hath the mighty fallen into disuse and neglect, with the scorn of duped citizens at his sorry appearance. Perhaps had he been treated with kindness, and not made to satisfy the selfish ends of grasping individuals, but employed for the good of the citizens generally, he now would be housed for the winter and respected for having performed the duty expected at first from him. But he has been made to do service in byways and places of questionable necessity, his reputation for usefulness has disappeared, and he is to an extent outlawed from public service. Perhaps when the warm winds of springtime again blow, and he receives the care necessary to put him in a condition of usefulness, under more careful and discreet management, the famous Jumbo may retrieve his reputation and become a paying possession to the city.

Canned Goods.

The wholesale grocers of Canada are complaining of the sub-section of the act to amend the Weights and Measures Act of 1879. The section says every hermetically sealed package of canned goods such as fruit, vegetables, fish, and the like shall have the weight of the contents of the tin, can, or package containing the same legibly marked upon it, and any packer or other person found guilty of selling or exposing for sale such goods in any such tin, can, or package, on which the weight of the contents is not marked, or on which such weight is not as represented, shall for the first offence incur a penalty of $2 for each tin, can, or package, and for each subsequent offence a penalty of not less than $3 or more than $20 for each such tin, can, or package. This section shall only come into force on the 1st day of January, 1885. Some of the leading Canadian firms say the act is most absurd and cannot be acted up to except through fraud. It was very difficult to make all the cans the same size. The whole thing was unfair to the trade and would not protect home manufactures from United States goods. No tomatoes come from the other side of the line; no lobsters either. A little salmon come in; then there are sardines from France—what is to be done with them? A deputation goes to Ottawa to have the obnoxious section repealed.

British Columbia Indians.

The report circulated in some of the papers that a feeling of irritation has displayed itself among some of the Indian tribes of the northern British Columbia coast contains a modicum of truth. The cause of the irritation is the arrest and trial of an Indian for murder. The Indians do not object to the punishment of the murderer, but they contend that they should be the instrument of vengeance for infraction of the law. Mixed up with the question is a misunderstanding which has arisen between the Church of England missionary, Rev. Mr. Duncan, and Bishop Ridley, the latter desiring to remove the missionary, and the Indians, over whom Mr. Duncan has very great influence, objecting strongly to the removal of the white man in whom they have so great confidence. While there is no likelihood of any serious collision between the whites and the Indians, yet it is likely that the Imperial government will send a war vessel to the coast in that part of British Columbia at the request of the Dominion government. Indeed, it is more than likely that the war vessel has already arrived at the point of anticipated danger.—Toronto Mail.

JOSEPH COOK.—Mr. Cook is a man who has not only the temperament but the physical basis of the orator: a man whose mere vitality is a tidal force to a large vehement brain. Joseph Cook is to-day a man in early middle life; a large man of nervous, sanguine temperament; fatter, it seems, than a man of such restless activity could be, with a round, frank face, a pleasant mouth, a non-aggressive nose, blue, kindly, overtaxed eyes that persist in shutting themselves; a high, broad brow, burdened by reflective faculties; a large head covered with a mane of brown hair, and the moon-like roundness of his visage is lengthened by a brown beard. In repose he is a fair, comfortable man, not suggestive of mental sovereignty, but the moment he speaks you are sure of his power.—MRS. MARY CLEMMER, in the N. Y. Independent.

JOSEFFY.—The great pianist played on Thursday night at Newmarket Theatre before one of the largest and most enthusiastic audiences that ever assembled in Portland. The artist was recalled nine times. There are a sufficient number of lovers of music and cultivated men and women in Victoria to give this great man an equally good "send off."

YOUNG MEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION.—A public meeting will be held at the City Hall on Monday evening at 8 p. m., to take into consideration the organization of this society. Ladies are invited to be present. It is pleasant to note that this movement is assuming a practical shape.

A CHALLENGE.—Mr. C. Clancy of Seattle issues a most tempting challenge to local sportsmen this morning. He may be found at the Pritchard House till 10 a. m.

Receipts the past year	$5,350,041
Paid for relief	$2,015,822

During the past 65 years of its existence there have been initiated 1,318,225 members and $1,096,950 paid for weekly benefits and contributions, and 144,805 widowed families assisted and $36,743,136.75 expended for relief, and the sum of $98,227,589.60 received from subordinate lodges. It has a surplus in halls, cash and other property of some $22,000,000. The order is spreading rapidly throughout the world on its mission of brotherly love. It was established in Victoria, Vancouver Island, B. C., the 3rd day of July, 1858, by Frank B. Austin, of Templar Lodge No. 17, San Francisco, Cal., as "Vancouver Association." This continued until the institution of Victoria Lodge No. 1, in the year 1864 under the jurisdiction of the Grand Lodge of California. There is now a Grand Lodge of British Columbia, which holds its annual session in Victoria. There are six subordinate lodges, and a membership of about 800—three lodges in Victoria, one in New Westminster, one in Nanaimo and one in Wellington. There is also an encampment in Victoria, and one in New Westminster. The order is in a prosperous financial condition, increasing in members, doing a good work with favorable prospects. It is the owner of a fine large brick building in Victoria in which is a large hall, elegantly furnished for its meetings, a library of several hundred volumes, and all necessary accommodation for the use of the order. We doubt if at the present time there is on the Pacific coast another Odd Fellows Hall for meetings as beautiful as this in Victoria, not excepting that at San Francisco.

County Court.

(Before Hon. Mr. Justice Crease.)

McLean and others vs. Lawson and others—This was a plaint in which several other workmen employed by Mr. Lawson filed liens against the building erected for Wing Kee.

The evidence was taken at length, and Mr. Wilson was allowed to intervene on behalf of Mr. Muirhead, the receiver. The main contention is whether the liens are to prevail over the rights of a receiver and the argument on this point was adjourned until the other county court cases were disposed of.

Mr. Drake, for plaintiff, Mr. Wall and Mr. Mills for the defendants.

Manitoba vs. Corporation—Appeal against the decision of Mr. Pemberton and Enterprise Company against two contributories, stands adjourned until Wednesday night.

JOSEFFY CONCERT.—The box sheet for the Joseffy concert will be opened at Waitt's bookstore to-day from 10:30 a. m. to 12:30, and from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. Although the local manager, Mr. G. Werner, has been requested to mark off a large number of seats, he has not done so, wishing to give all a fair chance to secure sitting, there no doubt will be a great rush for tickets and a bumper house given the great pianist.

AQUATIC.—Mr. Seeley, of the Australian Hotel, received a letter from San Francisco the other day stating his son, James Seeley, one of our local oarsmen, had gone to the Sandwich Islands to train a crew for the brother of King Kalakua.

GLAD TIDINGS. — The missionary steamer of this name yesterday was having her boiler placed in position at the C. P. N. Co.'s dock. The steamer has received her engines, and will be ready shortly. She was built at New Westminster.

PEARCE, WELD & Co., of London, Ont., seed merchants, who have been established since 1854, have sent us their annual, a handsome pamphlet of 46 pages. They have also issued a brochure on The Formation of Permanent Pastures, which contains much valuable information for agriculturalists and others.

DEATH.—Ex-Mayor Dalby received a telegram from Elora, Ont., yesterday announcing the death there of his eldest brother, Thomas, at the age of 48, after a long illness. The family have the sympathy of the public.

NO OPIUM.—The ship City of Brooklyn, seized at San Francisco on suspicion of having smuggled opium on board, was searched and not an ounce of the drug was found. The customs officers were "sold" by a telegram from Victoria.

THE MARIONETTES.—These little people delighted another large audience last night. They will give a matinee at two o'clock this afternoon and a last performance this evening. They are really worth seeing.

TEMPERANCE.—Mr. M. Barry is fitting up a temperance billiard parlor on Fort street for young men who desire recreation without dissipation.

The Geo. W. Elder Collides with the Outer Wharf.

The Geo. W. Elder came in from Seattle last evening at 9:30, and while entering here ran into the outer wharf, carrying away half-a-dozen piles, and shaking the warehouse and wharf considerably. The steamer only sustained slight damage. A dense fog was prevailing at the time of the accident. The total damage could not be learned last night, nor the cause of the collision.

SAD BEREAVEMENT.—Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Englehardt have met with a sad bereavement in the rather sudden demise of their only daughter, Selia, a bright and affectionate child of nearly eleven years. The parents, who have the sympathy of all their friends, are inconsolable in consequence of their great loss.

A Truthful Citizen Defends the Council of 1883.

TO THE EDITOR:—In yesterday's Standard appeared a letter signed "Another Citizen," and headed "An Untruthful Citizen," and as the writer of the same says particular stress on truthfulness and impartiality I think he should have been more careful than he apparently has been, particularly on the financial condition in which the present council found the city. As a member of the former council for the first, and last, time I deem it a duty to refute several of his charges reflecting on that body. First. The amount of indebtedness left by us was not over $2,400, which was about the legacy of indebtedness left us by the council of 1882; but out of the revenue for the year 1883 we used, for what I think most of the ratepayers will consider good investments, the following sums, to-wit: For new filter bed, capable of doubling the amount of filtered water over any previous year, the sum of $6,300; the land and right of way through school reserve for the opening of Yates street, $2,285. The corporation also became owners of horses, truck, cart, harness, etc., amounting to $960, and a steam drill, $816; and besides these items kept the city in as good condition as in former years. I think the financial part will bear investigation. He also alludes to an untried machine called "Jumbo." This I must also take exception to as the Monster was tried on Herald street, also on the beach or near it, and found by actual work done to be a saving amounting to considerable during the year to the city on the cost of breaking rock for macadamizing. The next charge is an unsatisfactory electric light contract that will not bear investigation. In this connection I will only say I was not in the city when the contract for lighting the city was signed, but the bylaw No. 101 contains this: "That the electric light shall be on three masts (places designated in said bylaw) and of an illuminating power of fifty thousand candle power combined." The bylaw further says that, if the light is not up to the standard the council may give notice to the company to terminate the agreement in ten days after such notice. This bylaw was submitted to the ratepayers of Victoria city and council; the council of 1883, about two weeks before retiring from office, must, I presume, have found the light to be of the required illuminating power, hence the contract. Should the present council on taking office have discovered the light not what they were paying for, I should think they would not continue it, hence it is evident that the contract must be all right. This, I trust, will satisfy the writer that he has been rather hasty in making unpleasant charges that cannot be substantiated. WM. JENSEN.

Dirt and the Doctor.

TO THE EDITOR:—It is remarkable to what lengths egotism and cupidity will carry a man. Dr. Stevenson in his excuse for filth says, "I flatly deny," &c., &c. Who under the sun is this great "I"? Doctors are notoriously prone to disagree, but is the universal feeling of sickness that comes over everybody to a greater or less degree when brought in contact with a foul smell to be counted as nothing because the great "I," forsooth, denies that offensive dirt breeds disease? Let the doctor by all means ride his peculiar hobbies if he will, but if he lacks practice he should advertise in a less farcical manner.

Dirt on the skin will interfere with cutaneous functions; but nauseous gases taken into the lungs are most healthy and invigorating; at least "I" say so. As stated before the "I" appears to be the principal ingredient in the doctor's prescription. HYGIENE.

REST.

[Mary Clemmer.]

Weep not when I am dead, dear friend,
Sweetheart, grieve not when I lie low!
While o'er my clay your soft eyes bend
Remember it was good to go.
When low you press the violet sod,
Whose purple tears enstar my breast,
Beloved, think I sleep in God.
Remember such alone are blest.

The perfect silence will be dear,
How dear the chance of painless rest;
And on, beyond all pain or fear,
The perfect waking will be best.
How dim this distant day will seem.
How far the grief we suffer here!
This life the mirage of a dream,
Merged to a morning calm and clear.

Drinking Ceremonies.

[London Brewers' Guardian.]

The custom of touching glasses prior to drinking healths is very common in England and many other countries, and especially in Germany. It is curious to trace how this custom has prevailed, and still exists, even among savage tribes. To drink out of the same cup and to eat off the same plate, was one of the ways in which the ancients celebrated a marriage, and the wedding feast continues to be not the least important of the marriage ceremonies to the present day.

The Indians of Brazil retain a custom of drinking together a little brandy as a sign that the marriage is concluded. In China similar customs are met with. In the medieval banquets of Germany it was the custom to pass a "loving cup" from hand to hand, but this gradually necessitated that the cup should be of enormous size, and thus smaller cups or glasses were adopted, and the old custom was conformed to by the drinkers touching their glasses before drinking.

The ceremony attending the passing and drinking out of the "loving cup," as practiced at our great city festivals and at some of our college halls, is said to have arisen from the assassination of King Edward. It was then the custom among the Anglo-Saxons to pass round a large cup, from which each guest drank; he who thus drank stood up, and as he lifted the cup with both hands his body was exposed without any defence to a blow, and the occasion was often seized by an enemy to murder him. To prevent this the following plan was adopted: When one of the company stood up to drink, he required the companion who sat next to him to be his pledge—that is, to be responsible for protecting him against anybody who should attempt to take advantage of his defenseless position; this companion stood up also, and raised his drawn sword in his hand to defend the drinker while drinking.

This practice, in a somewhat altered form, continued long after the condition of society had ceased to require it, and was the origin of the modern practice of pledging in drinking. In drinking from the "loving cup" as now practiced, each person rises and takes the cup in his hand to drink, and at the same time the person seated next to him rises also, and when the latter takes the cup in his turn, the individual next to him does the same.

Influence of Electricity on Bread.

[Pittsburg Commercial-Gazette.]

A communication has been sent to this office which, to say the least, if not quaint, is decidedly original, and if followed up promises to revolutionize the bread industry of this and other countries. In fact it would seem that there is in store for the people the stern necessity of seeing to it that every man knows his baker and that the aforesaid man of kneads is a person of good morals, in fact a man after his (the bread eater's) own heart, lest by eating the bread the consumer partakes of the nature of the baker. The communication is as follows:

To the Editor of The Commercial Gazette: I have for some time been studying animal electricity in its various phases, and the result of my investigations leads me to believe that it is possible for human beings to impart electricity to fellow men in ways that would at first thought seem highly improbable. Especially is this possible through the medium of breadstuffs. In fact, it is impossible to eat bread without partaking of the masculine electricity of the baker who kneaded it, and thus in time the consumer takes on the disposition of the baker. The theory, of course being, that while shaping the loaves of bread, while yet in the dough, by contact with the same, the baker imparts to it a portion of his nature, which lies dormant in the baking process, but making itself felt in the system of the consumer.

Villainous Absinthe.

[Chicago Herald Interview.]

"What is your opinion, doctor, of absinthe as a beverage?" queried the scribe.

"Of all villainous drinks I think that is the worst. It is said to be good for digestion. It is not. A fool paragraph in the papers the other day said it was a sure cure for cholera. That is just as much a mistake as the other. But I'll tell you what it will surely do. It will surely make the drinker a confirmed epileptic, and it will destroy all his virile powers. It is imported from France, and in its purity is composed of the essence of wormwood (absinthium), sweet flag, aniseed, angelica root and alcohol. But like most imported liquor it is largely adulterated, and with the most deadly compounds, such as sulphate of copper, blue vitriol and chloride of antimony. Its action on the nervous system is different from that of alcohol, and more nearly resembles nicotine. In a word, a more consummate devil of destruction could not be concocted by the highest scientific sk than is found in this same absinthe, which many of our young men are now in the habit of drinking daily."

No Waiting for Inspiration.

[Chicago Journal.]

Mrs. Mary Clemmer Hudson once wrote of her early experiences: "I once entered into a written contract to write one column per day on any subject I was instructed to write on, for three years. I had not for a single day failed to fulfill my task, which included everything from book review, comments on government, public men and affairs to a common advertisement paragraph. You see I did not miss the apprenticeship of literary work. It was a toilsome time, but it cured me utterly of the mental perversity that waits for the inspiration of creative moods to do what is necessary to be done."

According to the Dog.

"Can dogs find their way home from a long distance?" asks an exchange. It's according to the dog. If it's one you want to get rid of, he can find his way back from California. If it's a good one, he's apt to get lost if he goes around the corner.

Our Jury System.

[Texas Siftings.]

"I suppose you earn your living by some sedentary occupation," remarked Justice Tegener, jocosely, to a tramp.

"You hit it, judge. When I am not on the road, I make a living sitting on a jury as a professional."

Then He'd Feel Safe.

BOOKS AND SEEDS

Which the Congressman Sends to His Constitutents.

Not the Way to Secure the Good Will of the Voters at Home—The Reason Why.

[Washington Star.]

"That man won't come back to congress again," said one of the employes of the house folding-room to The Star man the other day, pointing to the frank on one of a huge pile of square packages heaped up on the table and in one corner of the room.

"Why so?" asked The Star man.

"Just because these things will prevent it."

"What's in 'em? Dynamite?"

"Books."

"Books?"

"Yes, he's sending them all through his district, and he'll never come back any more, poor fellow! This is his first term and he has fallen into the delusion that the way to please his constituents is to send them books. They don't cost him anything, and he thinks it a good way to buy the good will of his constituents. He hasn't been here long enough to learn better."

"Don't you know," he continued, assuming a more confidential tone, "the members, almost without exception, who have begun by sending books home to their districts have been defeated. It's a fact. It defeats them every time."

"How is that? What are the books about?" The Star man asked.

"'Tisn't what's in them. The books are all right, except that some of them are sort of dry. They are the various reports, agricultural, interior department, patent office reports, and the like; scientific works on surveys, geology, agriculture, and the various matters that have been looked into under the direction of congress and the executive departments, besides the executive documents, the president's messages and reports upon foreign relations, commerce, and the like. Oh, they are all good enough books, as far as that goes. That isn't the thing."

"What is it, then?"

"Why, it's just this. When a man knows how to do it those books can be used to an advantage; but it won't do for him to distribute them loosely among his constituents. It'll defeat him, sure pop. The old member, who has experience, will make a good selection of books and send them to three or four of the leading politicians in his district. That's all right; it does some good. But when the new member undertakes to distribute them among all his constituents he gets himself in trouble. He can't have enough to go round, and the consequence is that neighbors Smith and Thompson get jealous because neighbor Jones got some books and they didn't; and when it comes to the election they will let the member know that their vote is as good as neighbor Jones'. See? That's the way lots of young members get caught.

"There's Maginnis; he won't send out a book. He has the longest list of any man in the house. I asked him one day: 'Major, why don't you send some of your books home?' 'My predecessor got beat that way,' was his reply, and the pile of books is still growing."

"Don't any of the old members send their books home?" asked the scribe.

"Oh, yes; lots of them do, but they put them in the hands of the politicians, and not the mass of voters. Yes, yes; they send off lots of books and seeds, and that sort of thing, but they wait until the end of the session and send out all at one time to those who know how to handle them. Many, however, like Maginnis, pay no attention to them. Judge Kelley never does, nor does Charlie O'Neill nor Bingham. Harmer trades his books off for seeds. Bayne distributes his judiciously. Brewer, of New Jersey, ships his home in a lump and then distributes them as he sees proper. Some of the members do lots of trading with their books. Those from the cities trade with those from the country, giving them the agricultural reports for the more valuable scientific works. Then some of the country members trade off all of their books for seed. Some of the members sell their books to second-hand dealers; while others buy as many as they can get. I know of one new member who spent several thousand dollars sending books and seeds to his constituents. He got beaten. There are a number of members each session who spend large sums of money in this way. They can't get enough out of the appointment to go round in their districts, so they buy them. Some of the scientific works are very expensive. Powell's reports cost the government about $17 a piece to publish.

"Some of the members," he added, "send out lots of seed, and it is said, but I don't know how true it is, that the confiding constituents often are deceived by their wily representatives, who, when they can't get enough seeds at government expense, go off and buy a lot of cheap grass seed, and have it done up in small packages, and send it off as something rare."

Grant Angry.

[Chicago Tribune.]

One hundred thousand United States soldiers were massed under Gen. Sheridan in the southwest just after the war to induce Louis Napoleon to let Mexico alone. Gen. Grant was in favor of force. Secretary Seward couched a diplomatic request to the French emperor in the politest terms. This angered Grant. Gen. Ayers says he took dinner with Gen. Grant that day, and he said hardly a word through out the whole repast. After it was over they went out together to smoke, and sat down on the parapet. Gen. Ayers gave Gen. Grant a long black cigar, and he sat down and puffed away, still silent. Finally Grant blurted out a single remark: "I'm down on Louis Napoleon and Bill Seward," and this was the sum of his conversation for that day.

Fatal Salad.

[Chicago Herald.]

A new dish with which epicures tempt fate and give an impetus to stomach anodynes is composed of sliced oranges, sliced pineapples, sliced bananas, sliced hard boiled eggs, sliced cucumbers, vinegar and sugar. It is called a fruit salad.

Judge of His Chagrin.

A young man, meaning to be very gallant, presented a lady with a rose, saying: "Madame, allow me to present to you one of your sisters." Judge of his chagrin when a bug crawled out and sat down in the middle of the rose.

The Secret of Living Long.

A correspondent of the Paris Voltaire recently had an interview with M. Chevraul, the famous French chemist, whose 99th birthday has just been celebrated by the Academy of Science. After thanking the journalist for all his good wishes the old man proceeded to tell him the secret of living long. "I have never been a pessimist," said he, "and I have cautiously kept myself from being too much of an optomist. If I had not worked hard I would have died long ago. One thing above all I have remarked: the older I grow the better mankind seems to have become. I have seen the Reign of Terror. I was then 7 years old. Such a thing will never again be produced in this world. To-day we have more need of universal peace than foolish reprisals. Times are more gentle and life is better."

"To-morrow, my dear master," said the journalist, "you will appear even better than you do to-day."

"Pshaw," replied the venerable savant, "let us not trouble ourselves about to-morrow. Let us enjoy the present. I had a model of a wife, the mother of a most exemplary family. She has left me a posterity whom I love and by whom I am loved. Why, one of my little great-granddaughters—she is three years old—salutes the bust of her old great-grandfather every morning. Another of them, quite a learned lady of 9 years, wrote this to me the other day; 'My dear papa, I'm tired of the country. My sister Marie likes housekeeping; I don't. I like to read. I want to be a librarian when I grow up. They call me Miss Blue Stocking, and that vexes me.'" The old man laughed. "Why, my dear sir," he continued, "I am made young again by just such letters as that. Moreover, I have always put in practice the old adage, 'Seek and you shall find.' I have sought, and I have always found something at the domestic fireside as well as in the laboratory."
